East Indian Love Lyric Theme For First Mary Pickford Film LOW PRICES START

Weird Verse by Laurence Hope Suggests Photoplay to Hector Turnbull.

HUMILITY ITS CHIEF NOTE

Announcement Whets Interest In Young Star's Managerial Venture.

Songs have suggested many things to many minds, but the suggestion contianed in Laurence Hope's weird Bast Indian ballad, "Less Than Dust" would hardly appear to contain the germ of a picture play for so active personality as that of Mary Pick-made the basis of the rirst play to be turned out by Miss Pickford for the inauguration of her career as an "actress-managerness-produceress!"

Reverting to the basis of the photoptay matter published in this column yesterday it might be stated that come from the king of the ress agents, Welles Hawkes, who has essayed to make the fame of Miss Pickford ever more "famer than famest." But Hawkes is at liberty

What he had to say about the matter was only that Miss Pickford had started with the production of the play based on "Less Than Dust." This song appears with a series of Laurence Hope's ballads of East India under the title of East Indian Love Lyrick." and is much used by the very accomplished and a artistic vocalists who perform at musicales and exclusive concerts. The songs are really excellent examples of weird Indian poetry and music, and are regarded by critics of the most exquisite type of such ereations. What he had to say about the mat-

On Hawkes' Authority. Hector Turnbull, who was for so long dramatic critic of the New York Tribune, and later head of the scenario department of the Lasky Film Company, is the author of the play that has been made from "Less Than Dust" for Miss Pickford. The verse gives one a very complete idea of extreme humility. The play that has been made from it concerns a little English girl, and the scenes are laid in India and England.

laid in India and England.

John Emerson, the stage director whose entrance to the motion picture field as one of the Triangle directors was regarded as one of the really big things that have happened to motion pictures in the last year and a half, has charge of the production of the play so far as direction goes. Mr. Hawkes—he can't be left out of it altogether—asserts that Mr. Emerson has created a wonderful asmospheric production. pheric production.

pheric production.

Hawkes is given as authority for this, as he appears to be the only one who knows anything about it—except, of course, Miss Pickford, Mr. Turnbull, Mr. Emerson, and quite a lot of other people, in fact. Anyhow, Hawkes is the only one who has anything to say about it at all. That's his job. But picture patrons might feel assured that Miss Pickford has a very carefully made vehicle for her personality.

Director's Strategy Checked. In these days of wars and rumors of wars anything that smacks of military maneuvers is interesting. Hartary maneuvers is interesting. Harry Harvey, the Balboa director, is a military strategist. He used to work at it for a living before the motion pictures got him. He was one of the hired men of Uncle Sam who wore a uniform and invented imaginary armies and things for troops to overcome in war games.

He was appointed an umpire at ene of the maneuvers held in California by the army and militia combined some time ago. A bridge over a river had, theoretically, been blown up to prevent troops from crossing. Of course, the bridge was still there and Harvey was at his wits' end how to make it appear thoroughly destroyed. Suddenly he bethought him of a sign and he had one made—a large one that could be read even by an infantry captain. It set forth:

"This Bridge Has Been Blown Up." An infantry captain trying to cross the river with his company made for the bridge, saw the placard and halted his men. He thought a moment and then, inspired, he tore a piece off the placard, wrote on it, pinned it on the coat of the tallest man in front rank and started marching his company across the bridge.

Harvey saw it and, mad, clear through, thundered up to the bridge and halted the command.
"What the blank do you mean, you gourd head?" shouted Harvey.
"Can't you see that placard?"
The captain triumphantly pointed with his sword to the card on the soldier's coat. It read:
"These men are swimming across."
When Harvey came to the battle was over.

BARBER DEFEATED IN RACE AT BENNING

After several years of supremacy, I. C. Barber, driver of the much-lauded Eye-See-Bee, was compelled to dip his colors when Joe Dickinson, in his Statz, beat him in their match race at Benning track ytsterday afternoon.

Dickinson was unable to compete in the first "450" event, due to an injury to his magneto in transit from New York. However, after much difficulty, Dickinson managed to obtain a Stutz magneto from a stock car in the inclosure, which he installed in his speedster.

In no moment after his first race, during which his timing was slow, was Dickinson in danger of defeat at the hands of Barber. Probably he would not have lost the fifteen-mile race had he had time to make a few turns of the track with his new magneto.

From the flash of the flag in their match race, Dickinson secured the lead, holding it from the first turn to the finish, which was never in doubt.

The summary is as follows:

First event—Five-mile motorcycle—Won by Denham 7:16 2-5; Wall, second, 7:39 2-5.

Second event—Fifteen-mile motorcycle—Won by Denham 7:16 2-5; Wall, second, Yang 2-5.
